UPDATE: January 14, 2020 - Detectives identified and charged a woman who robbed a victim of his puppy at gunpoint in December in Landover. She is 26-year-old Juanel Huff of the 2600 block of Bowen Street SE in Washington D.C. She is in custody in the District.

On December 30, 2019, Huff and an accomplice robbed the victim of his puppy, Lobo, at Kent Village Drive and E. Ridge Drive in Landover.

The victim told our detectives that he was walking the puppy when he noticed a car pass him and then pull over a short distance ahead. Our preliminary investigation reveals Huff got out of the car and walked to the trunk. The victim says Huff approached him from behind, displayed a gun and demanded the puppy. The victim grabbed the weapon and the two began to struggle over the gun. That's when the second suspect approached. The victim let go of the gun. Huff then pulled the trigger several times, but the gun didn't fire. Huff grabbed the puppy and the two suspects sped away. The victim suffered minor injuries.

On December 31st, 2019, a citizen spotted Lobo alone in Southeast D.C. and called authorities. He told detectives he recognized the puppy from local media coverage. Detectives drove to D.C. and recovered the puppy and returned him to his owners.

Huff is charged with attempted second degree murder, assault first degree, armed robbery and additional charges. She's in custody in the District on an unrelated charge pending extradition to Prince George's County. Detectives continue to work to identify Huff's accomplice.
