CAPITOL HEIGHTS, MD – June 10, 2020 – In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, and the large impact to Prince George's County, Maryland, Holistic Industries donated 1,000 N95 masks and 15 gallons of hand sanitizer to the Prince George's County Government. The hand sanitizer was produced at Holistic's Maryland cultivation facility in Prince George's County.

"I want to share my deep appreciation for the support and generosity you are extending to our residents during these unprecedented times. Your support will ensure that our Fire/EMS Department can continue to safely respond to calls from residents during this pandemic," said County Executive Angela Alsobrooks in a letter to Holistic Industries. "Because of your thoughtfulness, I can trust that our County will stay safe and be taken care of during this crisis. You have proven what we already know to be true, that Prince Georgians are compassionate and are always ready to lift each other up."

Holistic Industries has operations in Capitol Heights and Rockville, Maryland. CEO Josh Genderson started the company in 2011, growing it into a national medical and consumer goods company, a cultivation and extraction network, and Liberty-branded retail dispensary chain. Within the industry, Holistic is recognized for deeply caring about the people who work and shop with them.

Holistic is honored to help their local county during this unprecedented time and looks forward to continuing to serve its patients and residents for many years to come.
