Callaway, MD—5 South Event Center has hosted a wide variety of events, from national bands like Trapt and Kix to wedding receptions, parties, vendor halls and much more. On Sunday, Oct. 8 from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., 5 South is hosting an outdoor festival to benefit the victims of the recent hurricanes.

For a simple $5 donation to the American Red Cross, you can gain access to this all-day event filled with an incredibly diverse amount of attractions. Starting at 11 a.m. is an indoor cornhole tournament, with the outdoor festival gates opening at 2 p.m. with live music. While the music plays, enjoy the food, spirits, and cigars while shopping at some local vendors. There will be live wrestling at 3 p.m. and then country line dancing at 7 p.m. Even the local bands are from a divergent number of genres.

If you cannot make it to this fantastic and undeniably entertaining event, consider donating to the American Red Cross, or any of the local charities of those affected by these devastating storms. But where else will you be able to listen to folk, watch wrestling and then go line dancing all while supporting those in need for only $5?
