After three games of the World Series, Ross still has hopes of returning to the mound.

With the Chicago White Sox ahead of Houston 3 games to none, there is still a good chance Ross will be called in as a reliever. Ross has bounced back from injuries suffered in the past few seasons, said his pitching coach.

Ross told me, in confidence, his manager assured him that if the series went to eight games he would be asked to contribute.

Keep up the good work Ross; we're pulling for you!
